

So what do the different members of the Army actually do?

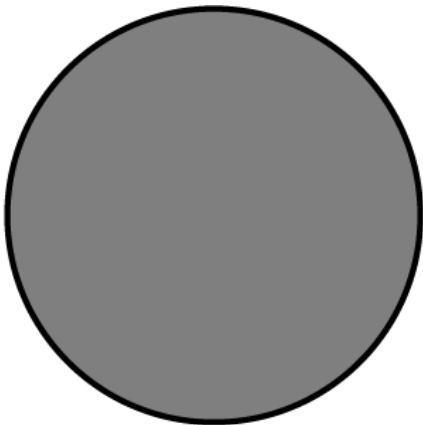

There are lots of different jobs that different people in the Army do. These jobs fall into 7 different groups. These groups are listed below, with a brief description of what the groups mean.

If you want to see more detail, and to find out what different jobs the Army does, visit the Army's recruitment website. (<https://apply.army.mod.uk/roles>)

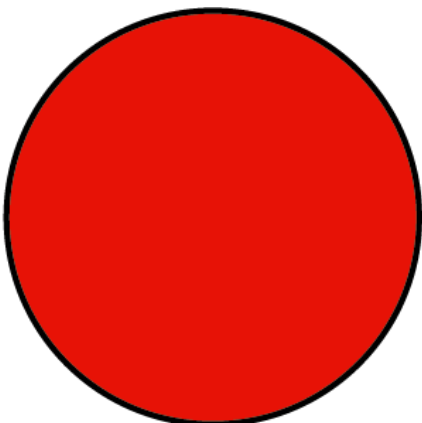

ENGINEERING

These are the members of the Army that make things work! The Engineers are good at fixing things, mending things and making things from scratch! It could be armoured vehicles, plumbing, buildings or electronic devices used by the Army - the engineers are the ones that keep it all going!

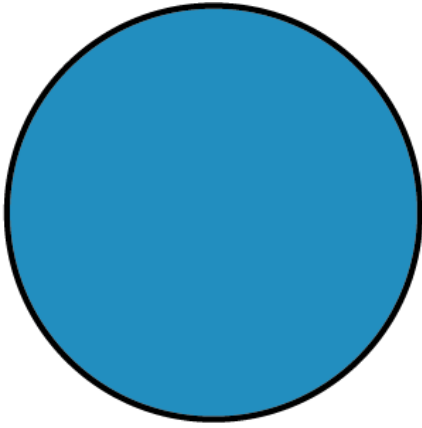

LOGISTICS & SUPPORT

These are the guys that make sure that everything gets from one place to another. It could be vital supplies needed by the Army, food, the post or even people! The Army wouldn't function if it wasn't for these people!

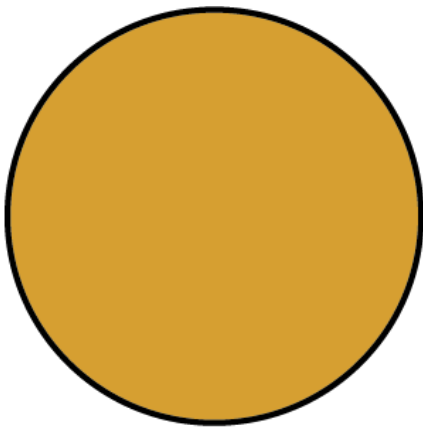

MUSIC & CEREMONIAL

The Army is often on show at special occasions. Although there are not a lot of these members of the team, they are the ones that the public often remembers. They play at special parades and events, and show a different side to the Army.

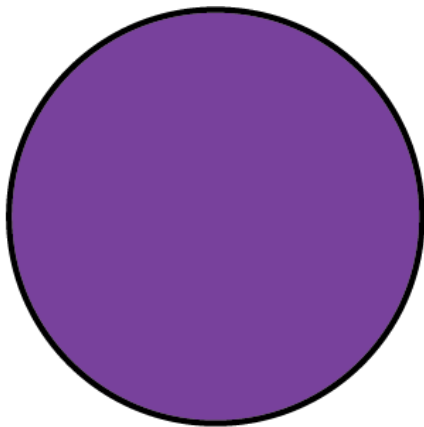

MEDICAL

This groups of people make sure that all the members of the Army stay fit and healthy! They could be doctors or dentists, nurses and other medical specialists. The vets even look after the Army animals! This group is such a vital part of the Army.

HR, FINANCE & SUPPORT

The Army costs a lot of money to run. Without financial experts the Army would not be able to do what it does. This group also help educate members of the Army. They also support members of the Army in personal difficulties.

INTELLIGENCE, COMMUNICATION & IT

The Army is a very modern organisation with some of the most advanced computers and equipment. This group of people are the ones that make this all work! It means that the Army can function wherever they are in the world.

COMBAT

This is the largest group. These are the people that have jobs like soldiers, crew members, paratroopers, gunners and cavalry. These are the ones we often think about when we hear of the Army.